

Basic State Driven Process

Sequential processes require one process block to end before another starts. This is the most common form of a process where block N depends on block N-1.

Independent Process

Parallel process act like several sequential processes allowing process blocks to overlap, any number can overlap as there are no direct restrictions within the DCO.